Marty,

Your call. That should be the time you are getting there and I know you have a short window of availability. The afternoons are a little busy here with briefing preparations regarding the fire

We need merit badges.

DATA team is a specialty that isn't a part of others normal job responsibilities. Who else besides Eric in the country can do the job that Marty is going to do? That's right, only the MFing DATA team. We need to better reporting out on of what we are doing. It might help all of us to continue to push the envelope in our regions / offices

So if i'm allowed to infer a bit.

If you were available and could have gone yourself, this task would have fallen within your normal duties and been considered Region 6 and not Data Team? Or it certainly would have been less obvious that it was a Data Team task.

So I want to state, I have no issue with the activation at all. I just think we need to consider how we are classifying data team activities if this is a situation where Marty and you would have been doing identical tasks, but Marty is 100% data team and you are less so.

My proposal would be to consider any tasks that are within the scope of the data team as data team activities, regardless of whether they fall within your normal 9-5 duties.

Broader definition means more things are considered Data Team work and thus the Team receives more recognition and visibility. Downside is it means there will be times when you should be reporting out to the team on things you are doing that are just part of your day job.

Anyway just food for thought. Hopefully we can all iron this out in NYC.

So since we didn't really get into the survey stuff from last time...

Can we identify the characteristics of this response that have made it a Data Team activation as opposed to a Region 6 activation?
